BOROUGH CHIEFS IGNORE POLICE SQUABBLE HERE

President Stock Fails To Submit Resignation Of George Aughinbaugh.

TOWN WITHOUT NIGHT OFFICER

Contrary to expectations in some quarters, council side-stepped the police issue at the April meeting, Friday evening.

The word "policeman" was not even mentioned at the meeting, and if any of the eight councilmen in attendance thought about the matter they kept silent for no opportunity was given for a further airing of the most rasping problem that has confronted a Gettysburg council in recent years.

Despite the fact that George B. Aughinbaugh resigned as day policeman since the March meeting, council took no cognizance of the resignation, nor was there any mention made of electing a second borough officer. Since Aughinbaugh resigned, Gettysburg has been without the services of a night policeman, Officer Paul B. Shealer's transfer from night to day duty having precipitated the other policeman's resignation.

Burgess Is Mum

Even Burgess C. A. Heiges, who was present at the meeting, kept "mum" on Aughinbaugh's resignation, although he had no official notification of the act, the officer having given his notice of resignation to P. C. Stock, president of council.

When asked today why he had not presented Aughinbaugh's resignation to council, President Stock said he was waiting developments which he expects before the next monthly meeting. He would not elaborate on his statement, but the council president intimated that there might be startling developments which would change the entire complexion of the controversy. President Stock said he planned to confer with Attorney T. F. Chrostwaite, of Hanover, president of the Pennsylvania Association of Boroughs, about certain phases of the local police situation.

Six Applicants

It was learned today that six applications for Gettysburg's vacant police position were in the hands of Ross Myers, secretary, at the Thursday evening session, but that none were presented inasmuch as no mention was made of the police situation.

President Stock, likewise, did not continue his attack upon Burgess Heiges' conduct of his office, begun at the March meeting, at the April session. The burgess forestalled any contemplated attack by publicly announcing in newspaper advertisements earlier in the week that anytime he is not in his office at the fire engine house, he may be reached at his home on Buford avenue. In the same advertisements, the burgess announced that he would be at home every morning between 8 and 9 o'clock for the transaction of any borough business.

At the March meeting, President Stock flayed the burgess for not having office hours at the fire engine house.

Naval Parley Peeves Italy

London, April 4 (AP)—The Italian naval delegation astounded the London conference today by issuing, through its official spokesman, a statement, which observers interpreted not only as a pointed reprimand to France but indicating that Italy is tired of the present Anglo-French negotiations concerning French demands for security.

The spokesman declared that Italy's claim to parity with France is unchanged although France "wants us to accept inferiority in naval strength."

Preacher-Miner Dies At Prayer

Kettle Island, Ky., April 4 (AP).—John Engle, coal miner on week days and Baptist preacher on Sundays, died kneeling in prayer after the terrific explosion in the Pioneer Coal company mine here last Saturday that killed 16 men. One of the rescue workers who helped bring out the bodies today told how Engle had been found dead from the poisonous gas that followed the blast. Engle conducted services Sunday among his fellow workers in this little mine community.

MORE THAN 300 ATTEND COMEDY

Benefit Performance For Boys' Work Is Given In Eddie Plank Gym, Thursday.

Playing before a fair sized audience in the Eddie Plank gymnasium on Thursday evening, the farce comedy, "Laff That Off" was presented in a creditable manner by the cast of college and town talent. The show was a benefit for the boys' work activities of the Lions' and Rotary clubs. More than 300 witnessed the performance.

Most of the play centered around four characters, three men and a young girl. The girl, "Peggy Bryant", was befriended by the three men and taken into their circle of friendship. At the outbreak of the war, two of the men enlist, while the third is refused and is left behind to care for the girl. However, when an opportunity presents itself the girl steals the savings of the trio and disappears. Nothing more is heard of her until after the war when she returns and discloses that she has been a success in the movie world. She explains why the money was taken and everything is satisfactory to the three pals. The closing scene shows each of the three men announcing his engagement to be married, one to a French girl, another to a servant girl and the third, to the movie actress.

One of the highlights of the production was the comic touch given the play by Leonard Bryant. Playing in his last show in college, Bryant upheld his reputation as being the "funny man" of local theatrical attempts.

The other members of the cast were: Miss Caroline Cole, Biglerville, as "Peggy Bryant"; Miss Anne Keet, "Emmie Mopupus"; Miss Mary Ramer, "Mrs. Connelly"; Miss Elizabeth Stallsmith, "Tubby Valentine"; Fred Goss, "Leo Mitchell"; Fred Pfeffer, "R. E. Morse"; Javens Plank, "Jimmy Valentine", and Herbert Mahl, "Mike Connelly".

The show was produced and coached under the direction of Dr. Richard A. Arms.

PLAN TRIBUTE TO WORLD WAR VETS IN SQUARE

Committee Asks Approval Of Council; To Submit Plans To Borough Fathers.

WILL REPAIR CEMENT DORK

Representatives of seven local organizations met at the fire engine house, Thursday evening, to discuss beautification of the grass plot in center square. James B. Aumen, who represented the firemen, and D. C. Stallsmith, who represented the Fraternal Order of Eagles, were elected temporary chairman and temporary secretary, respectively, of the committee.

The various representatives were unanimous in their opinions that the cement and brick work on the grass plot is in a "deplorable" condition, and gives tourists an unsavory impression of the town. The committee also expressed the opinion that the brick "chimney" in the middle of the plot should be removed to make way for a memorial to Gettysburg's world war veterans.

To Submit Plans

After discussing plans for beautifying the plot, Mr. Aumen, Mr. Stallsmith and John D. Lippy, the Rotary club's representative, appeared before council. After presenting the proposition to the borough fathers, the committee was instructed to secure definite plans and present them to council for ratification.

Others who attended the meeting were: George L. Taylor, representing the Lions club; Lloyd Hartman, Battlefield Guides' association; Henry Biddle and Allen Harman, the Loyal Order of Moose, and C. R. Wolff, the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks.

The committee will call another meeting later to meet with representatives of other organizations in order to formulate definite plans for improving the appearance of the grass plot.

COUNCIL WILL TEST TRAFFIC LIGHTS HERE

Asks Highway Department's Approval Of Two Traffic Lights In Town.

WILL RELIEVE MOTOR HAZARDS

Council decided to give traffic lights a trial at two dangerous street intersections here by action taken at the April meeting, Thursday evening.

The state highway department will be asked to give its approval to the placing of traffic light signals at the junction of Chambersburg street, Springs avenue, West street and Buford avenue and at the intersection of Carlisle street and Lincoln avenue.

Robert Eisminger, superintendent of maintenance for the highway dement in Adams county, who was asked to appear before council in connection with the traffic light proposition, outlined the hazards at these intersections as well as at the junction of Baltimore street and Steinwehr avenue and Baltimore and Middle streets.

Mr. Eisminger agreed with members of council that the greatest hazards existed at the McGuigan corner where children attending the Meade school building cross and recross the Lincoln highway and at the intersection of Carlisle street and Lincoln avenue. Numerous accidents and near-accidents at both places were discussed.

On Highway Routes

Inasmuch as both traffic lights would be erected on state highway routes permission of the highway department is necessary before they may be placed.

During discussion of the traffic light project, the suggestion was made that some of the existing motoring hazard at the intersection of Carlisle street and Lincoln avenue might be eliminated by extending East Broadway through to the Harrisburg road, and the state highway department may be asked to improve this link as an optional route into Gettysburg.

After the highway department passes on council's request for traffic lights, a representative of a light company will be asked to come here to help council with its problem.

A committee, comprising James B. Aumen, D. C. Stallsmith and John D. Lippy, appeared before council with a proposition to improve the center square grass plot. Mr. Aumen, spokesman for the committee, said the trio represented a number of local organizations who were interested in improving the grass plot.

Beautify Plot

"We hope, eventually, to get rid of that pile of bricks in the middle of the grass plot and to repair the concrete curb around the outer circle of the plot," Mr. Aumen said. The committee has discussed the erection of a world war memorial or a flagpole in the middle of the grass plot, but no decision has been arrived at, he said. The improvements contemplated no changes to the grass plots themselves.

After hearing the proposition, council went on record as favoring the improvements, with the understanding that detailed plans be submitted before work is begun.

Ross Myers, secretary, informed council that the borough's tax duplicate is ready for William Ogden, the collector. Council voted to turn over the duplicate as soon as the collector's bond is approved.

The following bills were approved: Gettysburg water company, $20 and $31.58; John S. Ogden, $3; Times and News Publishing company, $2; People's drug store, $3.05; Cumberland Valley telephone, $8.15; P. R. Bikle, $16.80; Joseph E. Codori, $47.10; Plank and Bell, $18.75; W. S. Hammaker, Harrisburg, $109.27; Gettysburg department store, $11.39; Gettysburg sales and service garage, $19.08, and Travelers' Insurance company, $37.08.

Councilmen at the meeting included P. C. Stock, Wimbert B. Neely, George Taylor, Frank B. Deardorff, W. I. Oyler, W. A. Miller, H. T. Stauffer and A. R. Levan.

Stalin Caters To Peasants

Moscow, April 4 (AP).—Far-reaching concessions to the peasants in an effort to encourage them to join collective farms were announced Thursday at the same time that Joseph Stalin, Communist leader, issued a further warning against violent administrative measures against the peasants in an effort to stamp out the Kulaks, or rich peasants.

Stalin, replying to an avalanche of letters received from peasants inquiring into the meaning of the government's recent abrupt turn in carrying out its agricultural plans, issued a statement which occupied the entire front page of the Soviet newspapers.

He insisted that the government's attitude did not constitute a retreat, but simply meant correcting former mistakes and excesses committed by overzealous officials who were "drunk with the success" of the collective movement.

No such far-reaching concessions have been made to the peasantry in the thirteen years of the revolution, an dthey are considered here to mark a milestone in Communist policy. Whether the changes are only temporary expedients to check the present withdrawal of peasants from the collective farms, or are a permanent means of fortifying the government, has not been indicated.

VILLANOVA NINE HERE SATURDAY

Bullets Engage In Second Clash Of Season On Nixon Field At 3 O'clock.

Inspired by their opening-game victory over the strong Dartmouth nine, the Orange and Blue Bullets of Gettysburg college, under the tutelage of the diamond sage, Ira Plank, are hoping to repeat with another conquest on Saturday when they meet the powerful Villanova aggregation here. The game will be called at 3 o'clock on Nixon field.

Coach Plank said he did not know who he would start on the mound for the Bullets. The popular mentor started Utz against Dartmouth, Wednesday, and for six innings the local product went great guns. He was then reached by the visiting sluggers and Haas was sent to his rescue. The southpaw was too much for the Hanover tribe and the Bullets came through with a victory.

In tomorrow's battle Coach Plank is at a loss whether to start the southpaw and save Utz for the Mt. St. Mary's battle, at Emmitsburg next Wednesday, or send the young right-hander back to duty Saturday and keep Haas for the clash next week.

The slugging of the Bullets was pleasing to Coach Plank. He is not entirely satisfied, but for the opening clash against such a strong foe, he was satisfied with the stick work of his proteges. "They can do better and must do better," said Coach Plank. "However, if they continue to show the improvement I know they are capable of we'll not have much trouble in weathering our stiff schedule."

Weather forecasts are favorable for tomorrow's tilt and a large crowd is expected to see the tribe of Plank in action against the crafty Villanova aggregation.

Coal Bill Passes English Commons

London, April 4 (AP).—The government's coal mines bill, which has been one of the most contentious measures in recent times, passed on third reading in the House of Commons Thursday night, a motion for rejection being defeated 277 to 234. The emasure now goes to the House of Lords.

The government's majority in the House of Commons compares with the majority of eight on second reading some weeks ago. The main body of the Liberal party refrained from voting, in accordance with the recent decision not to embarrass the government during the naval conference.

Prison Warden Dies Suddenly

William H. Heston, warden of the Holmesburg county prison and formerly superintendent of the Philadelphia county prisons, died suddenly in the Holmesburg guard house Thursday afternoon, He was in his fifty-ninth year.

Mr. Heston, who lived at 3563 Oakmont avenue, had made his afternoon inspection of the cell blocks and complained to one of the guards that he was feeling ill. He walked to the main gate of the prison, where he met Deputy Warden John W. Bennett, and explained that he was suffering from a heart pain and would go home to rest. While he waited for the gates to be opened, he collapsed and fell.

Bennett, assisted by one of the guards, carried the unconscious warden into the guard house. He was dead before the arrival of the prison physician, Dr. William Morrison, Jr.

Mr. Heston had been connected, in one capacity or another, with Holmesburg prison since the date of its opening, December 20, 1896. He entered it as a guard and within a few years was promoted to the position of registrar.

Police Fail To Halt Elopement

Harrisburg—The hand of the law seeking to stop two pairs from being married Thursday night seized the quartet too late.

The police received a telegram from the Danville police asking them to stop the elopement of Gerald H. Hale, 17, and Helen L. Smull, 16, and of Joseph H. Wigerman, 19, and Margaret Berninger, 16, who left Danville on Wednesday. Detective Sergeant Rineer found the four at the home of Mrs. Robert Gummo, 1012 Berryhill street. He arrived too late; they had been married in Maryland Wednesday and stopped to see their friend, Mrs. Gummo, on the way home Wednesday night.

Hale and Wigerman Thursday went to Danville to break the news of the marriage to their parents-in-law. When they saw a story in a Danville newspaper telling of the double elopement, they lost their nerve and returned to their wives in this city.

Detective Sergeant Rineer took the quartet to police headquarters, where they were held Thursday night, pending the arrival of the Danville police.

RASKOB LAUGHS AT QUESTIONERS

Democratic National Chairman Admits He Gave $64,000 To Fight Dry Law.

Washington, April 4 (AP).—Smiling calmly while senate lobby committee members engaged in heated quarrels among themselves, John J. Raskob today denied that his activities as a director of the association against prohibition amendment were mixed with his work as chairman of the Democratic national committee.

Raskob testified that he had contributed $64,000 to the association over a period of five years, but added that he was careful not to mix his personal beliefs on prohibition in the affairs of the Democratic national committee. He asserted that "no one can commit the Democratic party on the liquor question except the national convention."

The committee room was packed as Raskob began his testimony. F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, was standing in the back of the room.

From the beginning the Democrats and Republicans on the committee quarrelled over questions that Senator Robinson put to Raskob, but finally all joined in warm exchanges after the Indiana senator asked Raskob if he intended to resign the Democratic chairmanship in response to the suggestion made by Josephus Daniels in his North Carolina newspaper.

Daniels, secretary of the navy in the Wilson cabinet, had attacked Raskob for his membership in the association while holding the post of Democratic chairman.

The question went unanswered when Democratic members protested that it was irrelevant.

Agent Admits Large Shortage

Boston, April 4 (AP)—George A. Rivinius, of Winchester, Boston representative of the firm of George H. McFadden, Philadelphia cotton merchant, walked into the Milk street police station Thursday and told officers there, they said, that he was short $457,213 in his accounts.

A few hours after his arrest, Rivinius, a short, slender, dark complexioned and tired looking man, was arraigned in city court on two warrants charging forgery and uttering the sum of $215,213, the amount police said he confessed was due the Atlantic National Bank. The court directed that he be held in $50,000 bail for a further hearing April 10. He did not plead Thursday.

HORNSBY MAY QUIT BASEBALL

Los Angeles, April 4.—Rogers Hornsby, the once great second sacker and premier batter, is through with baseball for some time, perhaps for all time.

For two years he has been afflicted with a growth on the bone of his right heel. It produced a pain that stopped Hornsby's field work. Most of last year his territory around second base was limited and he was not sure on grounders.

After an X-ray examination of his aching heel Thursday morning Dr. F. C. Early discovered that the bone growth on the heel that was cut away last December had grown again and that it is absolutely necessary for him to quit.

INDIAN WOMAN ADMITS MURDER

Lila Jimerson, Descendant Of Mary Jamison, Enters Plea In Buffalo Hospital.

Buffalo, April 4.—Against the wishes of her tribe, Lila Jimerson, the Red Lilac of the Senecas, already broken by the white man's disease, tuberculosis, bowed Thursday to the white man's law.

She pleaded guilty to second degree murder before a county court hastily set up in the Buffalo City hospital. Wheeled into a room where court was convened, her dark face nearly white from faintness, the Indian squaw mumbled that she was guilty of the killing of Mrs. Clothilde Marchand, wife of Henri Marchand, well known artist and sculptor.

The Seneca's Red Lilac was not sentenced, and will not be while she is undergoing treatment. She was removed to the hospital Tuesday, collapsing in court as her trial neared conclusion. A mistrial was declared.

It is believed her decision to plead guilty was influenced by Dr. Walter Goodale, who told her the strain of another trial might be equivalent to a sentence of death. Doctors say the woman cannot live more than a year and a half, and a sentence of life imprisonment which she now faces, is but an ironic gesture.

Marchand, who testified to having made love to Lila as a "professional necessity" to get her to pose for him, still is in jail under $25,000 bond as a material witness. It is expected he will be released.

Lila Jimerson, linked in the sensational Marchand murder case, is said to be a descendant of Mary Jamison, White Squaw, whose memory is memoralized with a statue, at Old Jesuit Mission, Buchanan Valley.

Marchand Leaves Buffalo Jail

Buffalo, April 4 (AP).—Henri Marchand, internationally famous artist and sculptor, was released from the county jail today after having been held for two weeks in default of $25,000 bail as a material witness in connection with the slaying of his wife.

Since yesterday when Lila Jimerson, Indian woman, pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree, a reduced charge in connection with the murder of Mrs. Marchand, only a legal technicality has stood between the artist and freedom.

Late this morning Marchand was taken from the jail to the office of the district attorney, where final papers affecting his release were signed.

Marchand, it was learned today, has severed his connection with the Buffalo society of natural science. His resignation was mailed from the jail last night and it was said it would be accepted immediately.

DIRIGIBLES TO FLY NEW ROUTE

U. S. And Germany Each To Furnish Two Ships For Trans-Continent Service.

Washington, April 4 (AP).—Out of studies and conferences which have engaged Dr. Hugo Eckener, there emerged Thursday night the latest details concerning trans-oceanic dirigible service which may be instituted within two years.

One of the Graf Zeppelin commander's closest advisers, Commander J. C. Hunsacker, revealed that:

Passenger fares will be approximately double steamer rates.

Germany will furnish two ships, the Graf Zeppelin and a new dirigible to be constructed immediately for completion in 1931:

America will build two ships, modeled after the two dirigibles ordered by the United States Navy.

Eastward trips from airport to airport will be made in two days and western trips in three days.

"Immediately on his return to Germany," Hunsacker said, "Dr. Eckener will go ahead with the construction of a new dirigible for the service, a larger and faster ship than the Graf Zeppelin and scheduled to be completed by autumn of next year.

"The design has been drawn, but new ideas, gained by Dr. Eckener in America, will be included. A German subsidy will finance the building, and in little more than a year the sister ship and the Graf will be ready as the European contribution to the venture.

"Two ships will be constructed in the United States. Designs are being studied and the ships will follow the general structure of the two dirigibles ordered by the United States Navy. Plans under consideration include passenger capacities by 40, 60, and 80 persons.

"While the navy dirigibles will have hangar space for five fighting planes, the commercial ships will probably not carry heavier-than-air craft, but be modified to allow airplanes to make contacts while in flight.

Sidelights of New York

SIDELIGHTS eiFB-oUyV

By Richard Massock

New York—Every morning a gray bearded man of 87 leaves the Explorers' club and rides in the subway or on a bus to his office some five miles downtown.

The trip takes 15 to 30 minutes, which the rider can devote to his newspaper. Sixty-four years ago he covered a similar distance in half a day and had to watch out for Indians, buffalo and a fresh water supply.

The old gentleman is W. H. Jackson, Civil war veteran, photographer, painter and world traveler, whose first long journey was in 1866 over the Oregon trail, the centennial of which is being celebrated this year.

Jackson is perhaps the only pioneer of trail days now living in this city where the only unpaved road is the bridle path in Central park. Leaving St. Louis, Mo., in June of '66, he reached Salt Lake City in October and California the next January.

He was a bullwhacker then, driving a herd of horses to the coast. Now he paints pictures of the western scenes as he knew them for the Oregon Trail Memorial association.

Aside from that, he has one other distinction. He is really a nephew of Uncle Sam. Samuel Wilson, the Troy, N. Y., army contractor whose stamp on military stores gave rise to the character that represents America and who therefore was the prototype of the mythical "Uncle Sam," was Jackson's great-uncle.

Symbolical

A birthday party at a Fifth avenue hotel the other evening sat down to a table decorated with a miniature ambulance, motorcycles and reproductions of surgical paraphernalia. The guest of honor was Dr. Ernest R. Eaton, prominent physician, and each dish on the menu was named after some medical celebrity from Esculapius up.

The most decided air of realism, however, was conveyed when a surgeon, in white apron, cap and mask, came in, followed by a pair of nurses bearing gauze, lint and so on. A waiter garbed as a hospital orderly bore a great covered tray. The accompanying surgeon then selected a keen knife and proceeded to operate—upon a huge birthday cake.

Which reminds us of another story about the wife of one of the town's medical lights. A woman of delicate sensibilities, she has been unable to eat chicken since her husband, soon after their marriage, absent-mindedly dissected a roast fowl in professional manner.

Yes, But How?

Seldom have the town's finest had to watch their record as they have since His Elegance, Grover Whalen, became police commissioner. What with orders on courtesy and neatness, and trials for derelictions in course of duty, the local gendarmerie has been pretty careful of its conduct.

The cop who stopped in a shoe shine stand to wipe his boots and brush his uniform was attentive, therefore, when the proprietor, who had been reading the rumors of Whalen's impending resignation, said:

"I see you are going to lose your boss.

"Is that so?" replied the cop. Then, after a pause, "We'll sure miss him."

JACQUELINE ON HER OWN

by RICHARD STARR

SYNOPSIS: Jacqueline Grey and Teddy Montrose are kindred souls in their love adventure. Chance brought them both to a London restaurant one night. Jacqueline dined with Mrs. Porter Mason and Arthur Carew, alias Lenny Raymond and Teddy, broke and lonely, sat alone admiring the brown-eyed girl. He never expected he would meet her but fate drew them together later in the apartment of three card sharks who picked Teddy for an easy mark at cards. They threaten him when he wins heavily. Settlement of their differences is postponed when Jacqueline enters through the window. Cicero's night club was raided and the terrified girl escaped. The three attempted to detain Jacqueline and Teddy, and the latter joyously bests the trio in a fight and they escape. In a taxi they introduce themselves.

Chapter 17

A BEGGAR'S ROMANCE

Before Jacqueline Grey drifted off to sleep at the close of the most adventureous day of her life she reviewed the events that were climaxed by the glorious carefree moments she had spent with Teddy Montrose.

He obscured everything else in her thoughts which in itself was a compliment to that young man for Jacqueline had never thought about men much.

Neither had desired to end their adventure at the door of the Majestic and Jacqueline had agreed that Teddy might call again.

Now for the first time she realized what it might lead to and it seemed that only one course was opened to her. The adventure must end. He was Teddy Montrose, scion of Franklin Montrose of the Montrose Shipping Line and it was obvious that he belonged to a different class of society.

In her sojourn among the wealthy she was not averse to bluffing those she met but she did not intend to let herself drift into the affections of any young man under false pretenses.

A great gulf stretched between them and it seemed a very dreary expanse. Nevertheless it existed and she must face the fact.

The depressing thoughts of the night were temporarily forgotten in the joy of the moment when Teddy Montrose very punctually appeared the next day and took her to a dainty little tea shop in the west end.

There they found a cozy little corner where they might enjoy their tete-a-tette.

At first Teddy was rather inclined to be serious. Jacqueline liked him just as much by daylight as she had at night in his evening clothes.

"I should like to tell you something about myself," he said, with a straight face.

"Gracious! Do you mean confessions?"

He nodded. "If you feel it necessary to confess your past," returned Jacqueline sweetly, "I hope you don't expect me to do the same, because I am not going to."

Teddy waved his hand sketchily. "Forget it," he said. "You have no past."

"Haven't I? Don't you be too sure. I'm afraid my past would give you a serious shock."

But Teddy was too intent on his own past to heed her. "I am a penniless orphan," he said. "Not exactly an orphan, but an outcast. You understand me?"

"Im afraid I don't."

"It's rather difficult. But I've been all sorts of a fool. My father says so, and he ought to now, because he's had to pay for it. I'm just beginning to realize it now, when it's too late. Im the only son, you know, and I've sown some oats in my time—wild ones. Of course, the Old Top—that's the pater, you know — has always banged the table and roared, but the mater has smoothed things over and he has paid up. But lately the mater seems to have lost her charm somehow. The Old Top has been giving me a lot of anxiety —a lot of anxiety."

Jacqueline chuckled.

Teddy dived down his collar and brought up a shilling suspended on a string. He held it out to her.

"This is what it has come to," he said. "The Old Top is rather conventional—does things by the book, as the saying goes. At our last interview, which was rather warm, he handed me this in an envelope. Of course I thought it was a check until I found out. He told me to get out—just like that.

"That was the last I should ever have from him, he said. The heavy father business, you know. Never darken my doors again, and so on. Frightfully unoriginal. I told him so, but it didn't make him laugh. Very difficult to get a joke across to the Old Top. I thought he was pulling my leg at first, but I found he was ridiculously serious. My allowance had been cut off, and the bank had been warned. They wouldn't even give me an overdarft."

"What is an overdraft?" enquired Jacqueline, innocently.

"That's what you pay people with when you haven't got any money," explained Teddy, lucidly. "That's what banks are for. What's the good of banks which will only pay out money which you have previously paid to them? Rot, I call it."

"But what made your father so angry with you?" asked Jacqueline, vaguely conscious that the dreary gulf which separated her from all thoughts of Teddy Montrose was not perhaps so wide as she had imagined.

"I had been going the pace a bit; doing the knots as they say. And the Warwickshire Handicap put the lid on it."

"The Warwickshire Handicap!" cried Jacqueline, remembering the famous race on which she had adventured five pounds.

"Yes." Teddy spoke with gloom, "I owned and ran a horse named Prinkipo——"

"Prinkipo!" echoed Jacqueline.

"Yes. What's the matter?"

"I had some money on Prinkipo myself."

"Did you, though? I'm awfully sorry I let you down. He is a nice horse too, but they smothered him. He never had a chance. They crowded him to the rails, and he never would run unless he could see elbow room. He needs space, that horse, to do his stuff. The other jockeys knew it, and so they crowded him in."

"He ought to have spread-eagled the field," said Jacqueline.

"Gee, so he should. You know something about racing, I can see. Well, Prinkipo went down the hill, and altogether it cost me 17,000 pounds to foot the bill and clear up things generally."

"Seventeen thousand pounds!" gasped Jacqueline, her big eyes staring.

"Of course, the Old Top had to pay most of it. And he was quite sore over it, believe me. I told him it was the fortune of racing, and that one must take the ups with the downs, and that the world is full of a number of things. But he wouldn't listen to reason.

"He loses his temper very easily. Very hasty man he is. And when he has lost his temper it's simply no use trying to reason with him. Only makes him worse. He said the world was full of a number of fools, and I was the biggest of the lot. Then he gave me this in an envelope, and his blessing."

Teddy tapped his chest where the punctured shilling reposed.

"What became of Prinkipo?" asked Jacqueline.

"Sold him," said Teddy. "I had to sell him to help clear up the litter of my worthless life, so to speak. I paid 1,100 pounds for him, and spent another thousand or more training him and keeping him; and I sold him for 200. I paid all that towards my indebtedness. The Old Top paid the rest, and I can tell you he was peeved about it."

"Fancy!" murmured Jacqueline. "Fancy meeting the owner of Prinkipo. This is just like a romance."

"It is a romance," returned Teddy. "But now I'm a beggar. That is to say I was a beggar last night, but since then I have acquired some means which ought to last me a few days with care."

A cloud appears to threaten Jacqueline's carefree adventures in tomorrow's installment.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEWS ADAMS

TIRED OUT

As a boy I remember seeing a lovely picture that impressed me greatly, and which I have thought about, and seen in my memory, time and time again across the years. It was a painting of a child with a doll in its arms—but both doll and child had fallen asleep!

The head of the child rested upon its small chest where it had fallen through weariness of play. I thought—how happy a feeling to fall asleep, exhausted from something that had made you happy. How many drop along the way—tired out from worry and trouble.

But when people do things to make others happy, and become tired, or perform their daily toil with a song in their heart, because they love the thing they do, then the tired body meets a rest that soon soothes and rebuilds.

There is nothing more natural than to grow tired. It is a friendly warning that the body is ready for rest, and that this mortal frame must not be overtaxed.

A little while ago, I entered the restored building at Dearborn, Michigan, where Thomas Edison used to retire after long hours of toil, to read and rest. But the periods were not long—back to his bench he went! I believe that the greatest reason for Mr. Edison's splendid advanced age can be attributed to the fact that he has always worked, and that he has always been HAPPILY tired, after his long hours of toil. He knew that he was doing things that were to be of vast benefit to the world.

Yes, tired out. But happily tired out. That should be our aim and goal!

I always think of the tired body of the traffic man who has so much to contend with as he tries to please all on the busy street of the great city. I can imagine few workers more tired out than he. None of us should forget this—and we should seek to add happiness to his service. And this can be extended all along the line of endeavor.

And here's an important item—people do not get half so tired doing things when they are made to feel that their work is greatly appreciated!

Just Folks

THE TOOTH AND THE FAIRY

I've just tiptoed to her room,
Groping softly in the gloom
For her pillow, where she lies
With her heavy-lidded eyes,
And her chubby arms outspread
I've been careful not to make
Any noise less she might wake.

Softly moved my hand around
Till the thing I sought I found,
Tiny pearl of perfect white,
Difficult to find at night,
More so, when too great a stir
Would disturb the dreams of her,
And disclose the dreadful truth
It was Dad who took the tooth.

But I captured it in time,
And I've left the shining dime
In its place, and she will rise
With exultant, happy eyes
And she'll praise that fairy good
All around the neighborhood.
These are surely happy times,
Trading baby teeth for dimes.

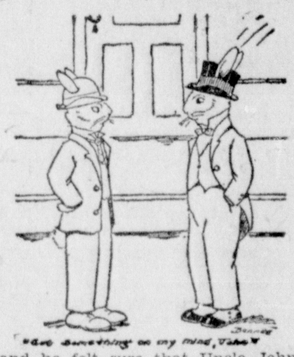
Little Jack Rabbit

By David Cory

Now, let me ponder for a minute. Uncle Lucky Lefthindfoot, the old gentleman rabbit, and his small bunny nephew were on their way to Turnip Town to see Uncle John Hare. Yes, Uncle Lucky was anxious to sell a thousand circus tickets, the money for which he was going to give to the Bunny Salvation Army.



and he felt sure that Uncle John Hare, when he learned that he was giving his circus free gratis for nothing, would be very glad to help him. Uncle Lucky was certainly kind and generous, and his circus was a dandy one, and well liked by all the people in Rabbitland.

"Goodness gracious meebus!" exclaimed Uncle Lucky, "how time does fly. Here we are only at the Carrot City Bridge. We still have several miles to go." Stepping on the gas, the impatient old gentleman rabbit sent the Luckymobile ahead at a swifter pace and before long drew up at Uncle John Hare's store in Turnip Town, where that good old bunny man sold groceries and notions, hair tonics and lotions.

"Got something on my mind, John," remarked Uncle Lucky, as he tied the Luckymobile to the hitching post in front of the store. "I'm trying to help the Salvation Army, and I've given my circus free for a week to help raise a lot of money. Now, what I want you to do is to sell a thousand tickets."

"Well," said Uncle John Hare, stroking his chin, "I might sell a ticket with each pound of tea or coffee, dozen eggs or box of ginger snaps. I'd like to do my part to help the bonny, I mean the bunny army lasses!"

"Well, I've brought along a thousand tickets," said Uncle Lucky. "You'll have to sell 'most a ton of tea and coffee, seems to me, to get rid of them."

"A ticket goes with every egg and every lump of sugar," suddenly exclaimed Uncle John Hare. "That's what, and I don't mean mebbe. The sugar'll taste all the sweeter and the egg all the fresher!"

"That's fine of you," cried happy Uncle Lucky, and laying the bundle of tickets on the counter, he hurried out to the Luckymobile and turned about for home, as it was getting well along toward sundown. Well, everything was going nice and smoothly, when, all of a sudden, just like that, quick as the wind that blows off your hat, a big turkey gobbler ran out of a barnyard and stood right in the middle of the road. Of course Uncle Lucky had to stop, because he didn't like to run over anybody.

"What the matter?" angrily enquired the old gentleman bunny.

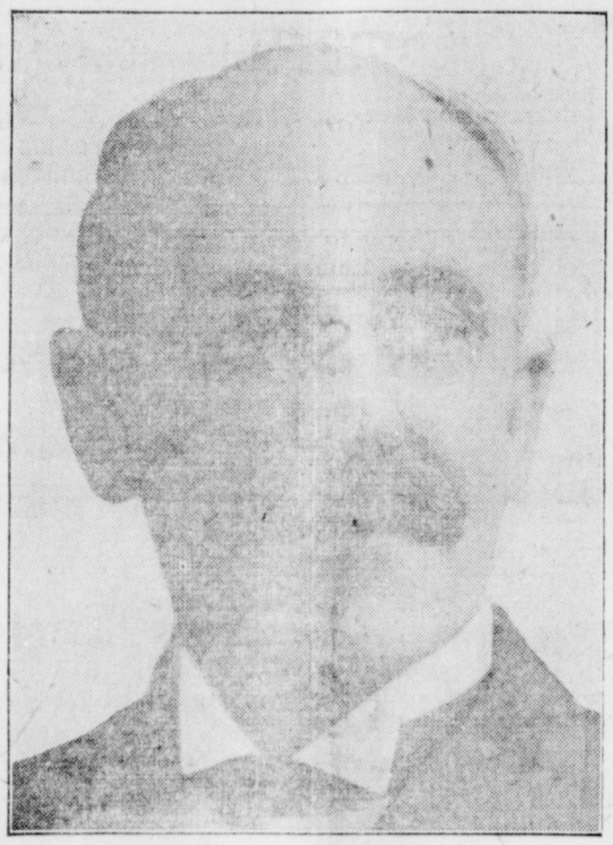
"You're going too fast," answered the turkey gobbler.

"Fiddle and drum sticks!" cried provoked Uncle Lucky. "Get out of my way or I'll throw a monkey wrench at you."

"I'll throw a gas bomb at you," shouted the little rabbit, holding up a toy balloon which Uncle John Hare had given him.

"Hold on, hold on!" cried the turkey gobbler, growing pale in the gills, "don't do that," and in his fright he stepped aside, giving Uncle Lucky a chance to start up and go ahead, which he did, without more ado, and in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

Another Doctor Endorses Flaxolyn



DR. CHARLES LESLIE LEWIS

"I Tried Flaxolyn Myself. Its Power to Do the Body Good Really Surprised Me!"

Following is a letter from Dr. Lewis of Pittsburgh to Dr. Harris H. Luntz (M. D., D. O.), the discoverer of Herbal Flaxolyn:

"Dear Dr. Luntz: When your Flaxolyn was first brought to my attention I must confess that I was mighty skeptical about the claims which were made for it by many of my friends who said they had taken it. One man was so enthusiastic about Flaxolyn and told me how wonderfully it had helped him, that, somehow or another, he convinced me that it might have merit.

"Being rather run down myself at the time, and recognizing the symptoms of auto-intoxication, I decided to try Flaxolyn myself. I felt that if it didn't do me any good, at least it couldn't do me any harm.

"I want to tell you now that I am well satisfied that Flaxolyn has genuine merit — it acts upon the stomach, liver and the intestinal tract in a natural and efficient way.

"As a rule I do not endorse any internal preparation, but I am so well satisfied that Flaxolyn can do an immense amount of good for the people here, that I am perfectly willing to allow my name and picture to be used in an open endorsement of Flaxolyn.

"I am not sufficiently versed in pharmaceutical circles to know what it is in Flaxolyn that makes it superior to any other preparation it has been my fortune to come in contact with, but I do know that I can sincerely recommend it as a remarkable aid to health."

You Need Not Be Sick to Receive Flaxolyn's Great Benefits

Flaxolyn is not only for sick people. The man or woman who feels 100 per cent fit at all times is rare. If you ARE sick, or generally ailing or rundown and tired out, you certainly should try Flaxolyn. In fact, it is a duty to yourself and to your family that you give this proven, meritorious prescription a fair trial.

If, however, you are not really sick, but feel that you could use greater strength and greater energy; if your friends tell you that you are not looking your best and you want that wonderful, natural good color that comes from a healthier condition, it would be a mighty good thing for you to get yourself a large, economical bottle of Flaxolyn and try it out for a while. See how it helps to bring a new sense of physical fitness. It drives out those intestinal toxic poisons which are so common even with people who think they are healthy. It activates the bile flow from the liver and stimulates the digestive fluids, so that you get more benefit from the food you eat.

GUARANTEE

Flaxolyn must bring a satisfactory health improvement by the sixth pleasant spoonful, or return the partly-used bottle to the drug store and get your money back.

Don't delay taking Flaxolyn. This pleasant-tasting, health product cannot hurt you and it may do you a tremendous amount of good. There are any number of folks right here who tell how the new Flaxolyn has put new pep in their step, new keenness in their appetite, new brightness in their faces, and new zest in their lives. Druggists can now supply you with new Herbal Flaxolyn.

Complete Physical Wreck After Flu

Mrs. McGraw

Erie, Pa. — "I had the 'flu' and pneumonia and it made a complete physical wreck of me. I was nervous, thin and pale, did not have blood enough, was so weak and miserable that I did not care to move or exert myself. I did not gain in health until I began taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it put me right on my feet, I picked up and felt fine after taking it for a time." — Mrs. Wm. McGraw, 2206 French St.

ONE THIMBLEFUL— A DAY'S FEED FOR ONE CHICK!

THINK OF IT! One tiny thimbleful . . . all the feed a chick can put in its little crop in one day. On this tiny bit it must live . . . grow . . . build bones . . . build muscles . . . start feathers. Think of the job feed has to do!

They must depend on feed for so many things! They get them all in Purina Chick Startena (mash) or Purina All-Mash Startena Chow . . . 12 different ingredients in every thimbleful. Cod-liver oil . . . dried buttermilk . . . alfalfa flour . . . granulated meat . . . these and eight others are there!

These 12 ingredients . . . think how carefully they must be mixed to make every thimbleful alike. Purina Startena and All-Mash Startena Chow are mixed over and over again . . . 960 times just to be thorough! You will find the same care taken with Baby Chick Chow (scratch) . . . to be fed with Startena until your chicks are six weeks old . . . and with Purina Growena (mash) and Purina Intermediate Hen Chow (scratch) . . . to be fed from then on until the pullets are laying at 16 weeks.

How little feed a chick eats . . . just one thimbleful a day . . . yet how important it is . . . how much depends on it . . . the chick's very life . . . its growth . . . what the pullets will do for you next fall and winter when eggs are sure to be worth good money. You can afford to feed only the best . . . Purina Poultry Chows.

"LOVE LIKE OURS CAN NEVER DIE," MUTTERED MARMADUKE, THICKLY.

"You'd be surprised," replied the sprightly Sophia. "With a rasping voice like yours, love is likely to fly out of the window and land on the back of its neck. What our love needs is insurance."

"What insurance?" he wondered.

"The insurance of OLD GOLDS, boy friend. Throat-ease and tender tones caused by the mellow, mild, heart-leaf tobacco; vocal cords that act without a struggle; no tickle, scratch or scrape. OLD GOLD yourself, Marmie, and we shall be inseparable. There's not a bark in a billion."

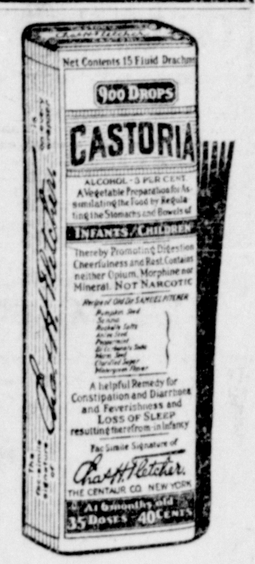
When Babies CRY



Babies will cry, often for no apparent reason. You may not know what's wrong, but you can always give Castoria. This soon has your little one comforted; if not, you should call a doctor. Don't experiment with medicines intended for the stronger systems of adults! Most of those little upsets are soon soothed away by a little of this pleasant-tasting, gentle-acting children's remedy that children like.

It may be the stomach, or may be the little bowels. Or in the case of older children, a sluggish, constipated condition. Castoria is still the thing to give. It is almost certain to clear up any minor ailment, and could by no possibility do the youngest child the slightest harm. So it's the first thing to think of when a child has a coated tongue; won't play, can't sleep, is fretful or out of sorts. Get the genuine; it always has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package.

Washington Highlights

By Herbert Plummer

Washington—World notables for the past 10 years have found in Stephen Geyer Porter a genial maitre d'capitol when they have visited Washington.

To the tall, handsome chairman of the house foreign affairs committee usually falls the duty of escorting visiting royalty and high foreign personages about the capitol.

Lord Robert Cecil once referred to Porter as "Lord Stephen." But on the hill and to those who know him he is "Steve."

Although he has been in congress continuously since 1910, it was not until after the world war that Porter came into national prominence. His name was heard often in discussions of post-war problems.

Foreign Expert

Few men in congress have the grasp of foreign affairs that Porter has. During the world war, despite the fact that he was of a different political faith, President Wilson frequently consulted him on questions dealing with the American war policies.

And in addition to seeking his advice on post-war problems, President Harding appointed Porter a member of the advisory committee which represented the house of representatives at the Washington conference on limitation of armaments.

There are few parts of the world that Porter has not seen. His travels have given him a knowledge of foreign affairs which is intimate.

Born on a farm in Ohio, Porter was brought to Pittsburgh by his parents at the age of 8. He started out in life to be a physician, but law soon claimed him. He read law with his brother and succeeded in gaining admittance to the Allegheny county bar in 1893.

In 1910 the thirty-second republican district of Pennsylvania sent him to congress, and he has been returned at every election since. When he entered the house, he severed all connections with law and has devoted his whole time to public service.

He has held only one other public office—city solicitor of Old Allegheny (Pittsburgh), a position he held while practicing law.

Democratic

Thoroughly at home in any situation and with any class of people, Porter is one of the most democratic public men in Washington. He rides to and from the capitol in a cut rate taxi.

Porter talks to his driver just as if he were a friend taking him for a ride. Taxi fares, salaries of drivers, peak hours of business, in fact the whole picture of the taxicab industry is elicited by Chairman "Steve."

At one time in his life Porter was considered one of the best huntsmen in Washington. Ill health forced him to get out into the open often and he was a crack shot with the rifle.

His ability along this line won for him a nickname that is sometimes heard now—"Caribou Steve."

POTTSVILLE MAN 74, ENTHUSES OVER KONJOLA

Suffered Many Years From Painful Ailments---Konjola Came To Rescue.

MR. CHARLES H. BECKER

"My age seemed to make no difference to this new medicine, Konjola", said Mr. Charles H. Becker, 200 North Center street, Pottsville. I suffered for several years with stomach and kidney trouble, then rheumatism attacked me. Every meal meant suffering from gases and belching. My kidneys pained me, especially at night and sleep was always difficult and often out of the question. My joints and legs became sore and stiff from rheumatism and I was utterly miserable.

"My friends induced me to try Konjola and this new medicine proved to be just what I wanted. My system was cleansed and invigorated, constipation passed and my stomach soon became normal again. Today I eat what I wish without the least discomfort. My rheumatism has been banished and my kidneys and bladder function perfectly. I can never be too enthusiastic regarding all this great medicine did for me."

Konjola has become the most talked of medicine in America because it makes good. And Konjola makes good in the most stubborn cases when given a fair trial. Six to eight bottles is recommended as a fair test.

Konjola is sold in Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, at Murphy's Cut Rate drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

Does Saxophone Menace Health? Question Phila. Court Must Solve

Philadelphia, April 4.—The wails of Harley Young's saxophone may or may not be a nuisance per se, according to legal terminology, but to Harry Auerback it is a "great amount of shrieks and clamor" and ought to be enjoined by the courts.

He so states in a suit which will bring the saxophonist and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Young, to the bar of common pleas court No. 3 before Judge MacNeille as defendants alleged to be causing a nuisance, a breach of the peace and danger to the health of other tenants in the Cordova apartments, 306-08 South 50th street, where the Youngs occupy an apartment.

Mr. Tuerback is the owner of the apartment house. He specifically complains that Harley Young's saxophone efforts are in violation of paragraph 5 of the rules and regulations of a one-year lease his father signed last August 1, providing that no tenants shall disturb other tenants by "unseemly or untimely noises."

According to Mr. Auerback, Harley Young's saxophone begins tooting around 4 o'clock in the afternoon and four hours later "visitors" arrive at the Young apartment and, from then on until midnight, there is an ensemble of saxophones.

Instead of creating tuneful melodies, the resultant effect is described as "boisterous, with discordant notes and a great amount of shrieks and clamors, disturbing the peace and quiet enjoyment of other tenants and endangering their health."

Mr. Auerback asks the court particularly to restrain "the playing of the saxophone by the defendant, Harley Young, unreasonably and from inviting guests to the apartment for the purpose of practicing music unreasonably."

Alice Orton, Maryland senior coed, has won the national collegiate rifle championship three years straight.
